Lisa Horrigan, "Beetle Cats Resting", 12 x 16 inches, Oil on Linen

Although Lisa is an award winning member of the Connecticut Watercolor Society, oil painting has become her primary medium. She also became involved in competitive sailing, which has made her marine art personal and has been a nice addition to her diverse range of subjects. Her fascination with figures, shapes, textures, light and atmosphere is reflected in her marines, landscapes and interiors. Regarding her diverse subjects, she has been inspired by travel to Italy and France as well as all of New England. Presently she works from her studio in West Thompson, Connecticut. Her paintings are in private collections in the United States, England and Switzerland.
